Why did we bring SECURE Sanitary Pads

Issues with Women

Most women in India experience Urinary Tract Infections (UTIs), and 70% report Reproductive Tract Infections (RTIs)

Rural India has an annual dropout rate of almost 23 million girls because of inadequate sanitation facilities and lack of access to menstrual products.

In India, approx. only 36% of women have access to sanitary pads, with the majority using plastic pads.

In India, 12 billion plastic sanitary pads are used annually, creating drainage problems and clogging landfills.

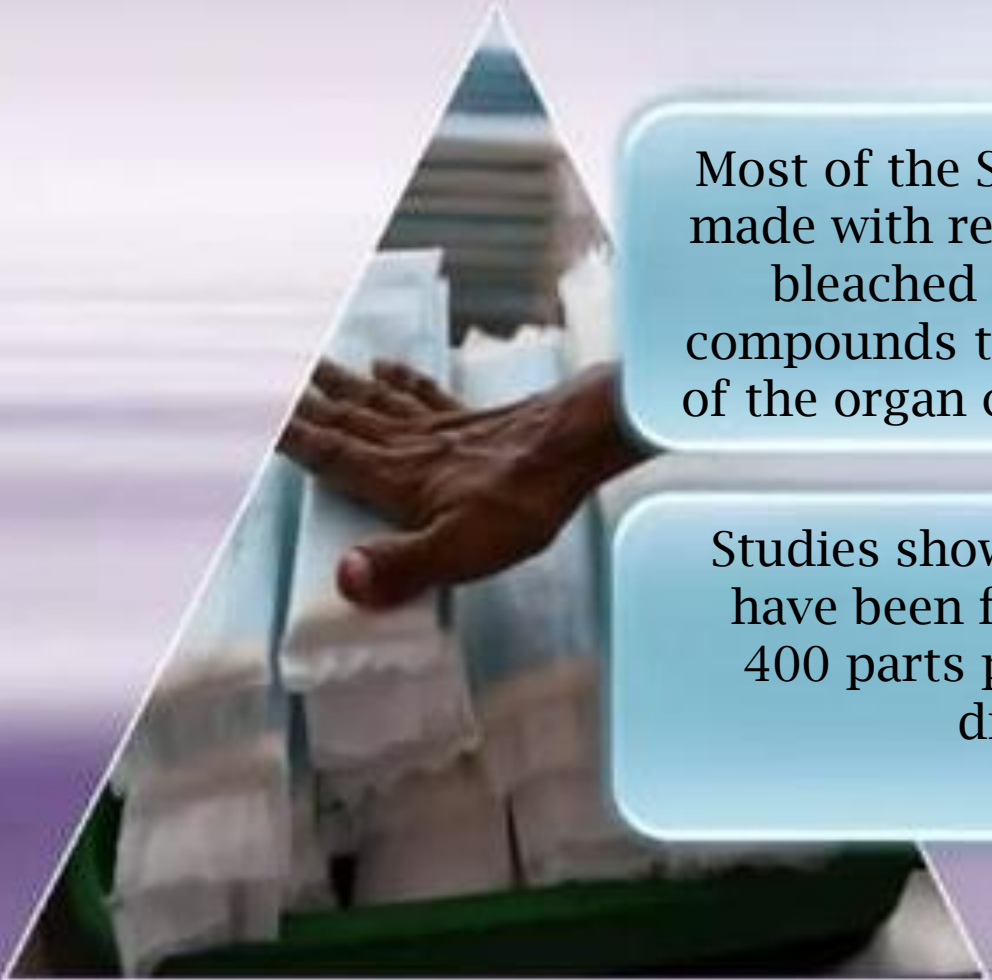

OBJECTIVE OF STUDIES

75% of women experience itching and pain during their menstrual period which is mostly caused by the use of the sanitary Pads that are not air permeable and skin sensitivity.

OBJECTIVE OF STUDIES

Most of the Sanitary Pads are made with recycle material or bleached with chlorine compounds that contain trace of the organ chlorine - Dioxin.

Studies shown, sanitary pads have been found to contain 400 parts per trillion (ppt) dioxine.

Dioxin: highly toxic, causing several types of cancer

- Odor control: Negative ions may help neutralize unpleasant odors.
- Pain relief: Negative ions can alleviate menstrual cramps and discomfort.
- Enhanced circulation: Negative ions boost blood flow in the pelvic area.
- Balanced pH levels: Anion pads help balance pH levels, leading to a healthier immune system and reduced stress.
